Visiting Israel has Consequences

I write this on the morning it has been announced Priti Patel, the UK's International Development Secretary, has resigned following unauthorised high-level meetings in Israel while on holiday. I, too, have recently returned from there. My trip, though, was authorised, and while I met many people, none of them was in the government. Furthermore, I wasn't on holiday – honest!

Visiting Israel had consequences for Ms Patel – and for me. I was deeply affected by the people whom I met and the stories they told. For some, principally Jewish Israelis, it is a wonderful land: a place where it is easy to be Jewish, where the climate and countryside make outdoor pursuits enjoyable all year round, and where culture flourishes. It is so attractive that I hope to return in early May to lead a Church of Scotland pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

For others, however, it is a land of deep and enduring challenge. One-fifth of the Israeli population is Arab, and many of them suffer discrimination in health, education and other social services. Worse, the people living in the occupied West Bank find their lives severely restricted. They cannot leave without a permit, granted only sporadically. I spent a couple of weeks living in Bethlehem, where water is supplied only one day in 20, forcing householders to store water in tanks for up to three weeks. I had been aware of the difference in living conditions but needed to live there for a time to experience it directly.

We recall that another visit to Israel had global consequences. Christian faith invites us to believe that God became present in a new, human way in the birth of the Christ Child in the very place where movement today is restricted and water is held back. This Child's life and teaching transcended all borders and nations; his offer of living water, echoing the invitation of the prophets to drink freely and live, has energised and transformed societies, communities and individuals.

It is this God come among us, born in poverty and under oppression to displaced parents, who is our Saviour. No place and no people is off-limits to God. May you know, whatever your situation or spirit, the presence in love and peace of God in Christ in these days and always. And may we not fail to keep our eyes open to the plight of many in our world, that we may reflect Christ's light in all places.

Boys' Brigade Sleepover

Three young intrepid adventurers from Orchardhill's Boys' Brigade Junior Section plus one leader left the Memorial Halls on Friday 3 November and headed to the Giant Sleepover at Glasgow Science Centre. There we joined some 400+ boys and leaders from Inverness to Dumfries, Millport to Edinburgh. All the boys were excited at the prospect of the Sleepover, and they were 'high' on the anticipation of what was to come.

Our first port of call at 6.30pm, after registering and dumping our luggage, was the Science Show Theatre where Amy demonstrated 'Flame On!' She spoke about friction and how the friction of two sticks or two pieces of flint rubbed together would give a spark enough to light a fire. She also demonstrated the Telsa Coil, invented in 1891 and used to produce high voltage, low current, high frequency alternating-current electricity. She ended her demonstration with a tornado flame – a whirlwind induced by fire. Despite us sitting three rows from the back of the theatre we were able to feel the heat.

Free time was ours to explore until 8.00pm. The boys enjoyed exploring and experimenting, especially how energy underpins our modern lives. "Equipped with five senses, man explores the universe and calls the adventure science," said Edwin Hubble.

At 8.00 we entered the Planetarium. Unfortunately the sky at night over Glasgow was rather cloudy and misty, so we quickly time-travelled. Finding the North Star, we found some of the night-sky features – the Plough, the Milky Way, Orion, Ursa Major and more. Did you know that four planets have rings round them and all the other planets would fit into Jupiter as it is so large?

After this surfeit of information the boys explored other floors before we headed for our hot chocolate, supper, devotions at 10.00. It was now time to collect our luggage and head to floor 3 and find somewhere to lay our weary heads, overloaded with information.

Our activity sheet said: "23.00: Get ready for sleep!" Sleep, not a chance. We had picked an area above something like a wind tunnel on floor 2 – like the sound of the subway coming into a station. However, at midnight the lights were out, sleep came to each and everyone of us relatively quickly.

6.00am came all too soon – get up, wash, dress, pack up our belongings, leave our area clean, and head down for breakfast, all well organised by the Brigade Scotland staff. We then could explore floor 1 until we left at just after 8.00 and return three semi-sleepy boys home.

A very worthwhile Friday evening, and I am sure the boys learned a great deal as well as realising the Boys' Brigade is much wider than just our company. Boys from all over Scotland were there enjoying themselves. The Boys' Brigade cares for and challenges children and young people through a programme of informal education in a fun way. This was certainly a fun way.

Thank you to all who organised the event and to the Staff of the Science Centre. Our boys were well behaved, a credit to themselves, their parents and the 86th.

The sleepovers have been taking place since 2013, and almost 2000 boys have been attending. Here's to the next time!!

Preparing for the Fayre

Orchardhill's Christmas Fayre was held the day before this edition of the Orchardhill Record was published. In the weeks before the event, of course, busy hands were at work in preparing for the Fayre – in kitchens and at the Orchard Café and elsewhere.

Lunchtime Communion

In early November our minister led a short Communion Service for our elderly members followed by a soup and home-baking lunch, which was served by the Orchard Café team. What a pleasure it was to chat with so many familiar older friends, some of whom who can no longer attend the Sunday morning services!

Thank You from Marion and Craig

Marion and Craig would like to thank all of our friends in Orchardhill for the love shown to us over the past 14 months of Kirstie's illness and for all of the cards and messages we have received. Your support has meant a great deal to us. Thanks also must go to Rev John Spiers, Rev John Miller and CrossWords for making Kirstie's Thanksgiving Service so special.

As most of you are aware, all of Kirstie's colleagues at Pikeman Nursery and some of her friends and family in the name of Kirstie's Krew took part in the special 10k sponsored walk for the Beatson Cancer Hospital, which took place three weeks before she died. They raised a total of £6150, of which £850 was raised at her funeral in Orchardhill.

A great big thank you to everyone. Kirstie would have been proud of you.

KIND Scotland Support

The Tree of Kindness is a new initiative where Orchardhill is partnering with KIND Scotland to help tackle the grave issue of poverty affecting so many people in Scotland. The organisations which KIND supports include:

Quarriers Family Resource Centre

The centre works with families experiencing difficulties. These difficulties can arise as a result of a range of issues such as poverty, domestic abuse or mental health. To achieve a more balanced family life, the centre offers programmes to aid bonding, attachment and the building of positive relationships.

Support is achieved through the provision of help given on an individual or group basis. Activities that provide this type of support include a women's group, a dad's group, literacy support, drop-in, playtime and parenting classes.

Family Addiction Support Services

FASS was started by parents in Glasgow in 1986 who were concerned by the growing drug problem in the city. Since then FASS has helped countless families and individuals to cope with the effects of addiction. FASS offers free one-to-one support to family members affected by alcohol or drug problems. They have a large number of affiliated groups meeting throughout Glasgow - family support groups, bereavement groups and kinships groups. FASS aims to promote the needs of families affected by addiction and to assist them to access support available to them.

Glasgow's Young Persons Befriending Service

This service provides support to isolated and vulnerable 8-18-year-olds living in the Glasgow area. The service matches adult volunteers with young people who are experiencing difficulties. The young people get the opportunity to have fun but also to build a relationship with a supportive adult, experience personal development and have access to activities and community resources otherwise outwith their reach.

This year they are also looking to support Glasgow Care Foundation. For 140 years this organisation has been supporting and caring for people in Glasgow. They strive to help people turn their lives around and give them a chance. They do this by meeting the urgent needs of those referred to them by Social Services and other agencies. Their support is very practical and includes helping families with gifts at Christmas.

Online Advent Calendar

Each day in Advent this year, from Sunday 3 December to Christmas Eve, Orchardhill's website will feature a short video from one of our members where they show the box they made and tell a little about what God With Us means to them.

We hope that this will give you different perspectives on God being present in the world as we prepare for Christmas, and that you'll enjoy seeing what people thought about and what they created. The website is www.orchardhill.org.uk. Why not tweet using the hashtag #notjustthebox, and let your friends know?

Guides' Congratulations

The 2nd A Giffnock Guides congratulate Emily Worthington on completing of her Baden-Powell Challenge Badge. This badge is the highest award available to girls in the company section of the Guide Association and is the culmination of hard work before moving on to the Senior Section.

The girls had the opportunity to practise CPR, the recovery position, and how to help a choking casualty when Craig and Karine from St Andrew's Ambulance visited the unit. We also learned about defibrillator use. We only hope that we do not need to use it! We also had a session on wound simulation and rescue scenarios.

The girls are looking forward to a visit to Eastwood Theatre for Eastwood Entertainers' pantomime and then a Christmas party before the end of the session.
